From the Blenheim Collection 1886

Exhibited at Burlington House, 1895

Mentioned by Dr. Waagen, p. 122, Smith's Catalogue, No. 262.

Engraved in mezzotint by McArdell and Valentine Green

"It was exhibited by the Duke of Marlborough at Burlington House, where it attracted my attention and admiration as a novelty in the artist's career, the picture being essentially a poetical effort. Oddly enough, it crossed my mind how much I would like to possess it, never dreaming a few years after it would be hanging on my wall.

"The portrait of Charles I. was bought by the National Gallery for some 15,000*l.* This picture fetched not half the interest of that sum, and yet they are equal in quality of painting so far as my judgment goes.

"I believe there are replicas of this picture abroad, but the presumption is very strong in favour of its being the original, as it is not probable the great victor of Blenheim would have been presented with a copy.

"It is the fate of all poetical work to be more or less disregarded, very few feel or appreciate it: hence my obtaining this valuable work for an old song."

Exhibited at Burlington House, 1872 and 1880

Exhibited at the Holbein Exhibition at Dresden, 1870

"Purchased by Sir John Millais when quite a young man for about 70 guineas." "Times."

"The picture was lent to the great Exhibition of Holbein's works at Dresden, 1870, and it was pronounced by Gruner so important as to rank fourth in that exhaustive collection of the master, as reference to the letter will show. (See Gruner's letter below.)

"There are initials at the back of the panel which would indicate it might have belonged to the Lord Treasurer Cecil, who had a mansion at Temple Bar full of Holbein's works.

"By examination with a magnifying glass, it will be apparent the picture has escaped all injury from the hands of cleaners.

"It is as fresh and pure as it left the painter, and compares very favourably with many of the most famous specimens which have been retouched.

"I think it probably a portrait of one of Holbein's countrymen or guild resident in London."

Note by the late Sir J. E. Millais, Bart.

Letter from Mr. Gruner to Sir J. E. Millais, Bart., when the picture was exhibited at the Holbein Exhibition at Dresden:—

DRESDEN: 30 PAAGER STRASSE.
October 19, 1870.

My Dear Sir,

In a very short time your beautiful picture by Holbein will be restored to you with many thanks of the council and the public. It has been unanimously judged the fourth fine original portrait by that great master. The first is the Morett of our gallery. The second is the Duke of Norfolk, from Windsor. The third is the banker Gisa, from the gallery in Berlin, particularly on account of its importance; and the fourth is yours.

There were about twelve to fourteen real portraits among the many exhibited, but whom yours represents remains a mystery.

(Signed) L. GRUNER.

Referring to this picture, Dr. Alfred Woltmann, author of 'The Life of Holbein,' writes as follows :—

CARLSRUHE, GERMANY.
October 20, 1871.

Dear Sir,

The portrait by Hans Holbein which you sent to the Holbein Exhibition at Dresden is a first rate picture, and one of the master's best works.

I am sorry that the English translation of my 'Life of Holbein' is all printed off, and that I shall not be able to speak there of your picture.

The more I think it suitable to tell you how much I value this work.

In an essay I have published in the 'National Zeitung' (Berlin), I said, after having mentioned the portraits of Morett (Dresden) and of the Duke of Norfolk (Windsor):—

"Endlichritt ein bisher unbekannter Hauptwerk auf den Schemplatz welcher den Herrn Millais in London gehört, und dessen werth durch die ausgezeichnete Erhaltung vollkommen wird."

May you tell me where you got the picture? I think that it is mentioned in Dr. Waagen's four volumes. I should be much obliged to you if you would send an answer to this question. I shall prepare during next year a second edition of my book in German,

I am, dear Sir,
Yours truly,
(Signed) ALFRED WOLTMANN.
Dr. Phil., Prof. Polytech. Schule.

Regarding this Holbein, it only remains to be said that Dr. Bode, Director of the Berlin Gallery, offered Sir J. E. Millais on July 6, 1891, 3000 guineas for the picture, which he considered about the finest work of the master, an offer which Sir John refused.

1700 110 THE NATURALIST. An aged and still enthusiastic man of Biddulph science, an ornithologist, is sitting on a couch propped with pillows, while he expounds to a group of children the construction and nature of a lustrous bird, a "specimen" of which in a stuffed condition he holds in his hands while he studies the creature through spectacles. On his right are two rosy little boys in straw hats. Behind the speaker a lady stoops to adjust his pillow; two more children are in front; a young girl sits at his feet, with a blue bird of gorgeous plumage lying neglected in her lap. Mr. T. O. Barlow, R.A., the painter's old friend and the engraver of many of his works, sat to Sir John E. Millais for the face of the ornithologist. The two little boys listening were painted from Sir John's grandchildren, the children of Mrs. James. The figures are life size

124 BY THE STILL WATERS OF THE OVERFLOW

"The picture represents a Bedouin encampment on the borders of the Syrian desert, near Sakarat, at the time of the inundation of the Nile Valley. At this period of the year the pastoral Bedouins frequent this locality and bring their sheep, goats and camels for the pasture, which is plentiful, even on the very edge of the desert. As soon as the water begins to subside, a fringe of green borders every still lake and pool, and this the Bedouins claim as belonging to them."—Note by the Artist.
